

The Year of the Partridge

A NEW PARTRIDGE season is just around the corner and you can be sure that it will be even greater than last year's—if that's possible. Don't miss it!

first big part, and I really worked hard at it."

When you're working at the studio all day, the lunch break means a lot. It gives you a chance to relax, and it also gives you an opportunity to find some of the better restaurants in Burbank.

One of Dave Madden's, Jeremy Gelbwak's and Danny Bonaduce's favorite places to eat is "The Blarney Stone." Dave says that he loves the split pea soup they serve there, but Jeremy and Danny would argue that the only thing to order at "The Blarney Stone" is the Chef's salad.

David and Shirley often step out to the "Yankee Peddler" for an excellent lunch in a very exclusive restaurant. David is crazy about lobster, but he'll try something new just so he can say he's had it!

THERE WILL BE one change in the show this season. The blond on the right is Brian Forster, who takes Jeremy Gelbwak's place. You'll adore him!

Suzanne Crough loves hamburgers, and asked about her favorite places to eat while working, she'll tell you, "My mom takes me to House of Pies sometimes. But Danny and I like to stay on the set and just get something from the truck that comes around."

MORE COSTUMES

When the Partridge Family started, the red velvet costume was the only one they had. But as the show progressed, more costumes were needed. Green velvet suits were added, and then blue velvet outfits, too!

There seemed to be some question if the blue suits were going to remain a part of the Partridge wardrobe... someone said that they didn't photograph very well! But when everyone saw the show they changed their minds!

In the last Partridge season, you've learned a lot about the five talented children, the beautiful mother, and the high strung manager known as the Partridge Family. They've also learned a lot about themselves.

It's hard to believe that the same uncertain bunch of people, now arrive on the set every day with a new confidence that shows in their work as well as in themselves!

This season, the Partridges promise to be even better! Watch Susan Dey acting excellently in a sensitive scene and Suzanne Crough socking across a punch line. Listen for David's beautiful new songs... they get better with every show. Who knows... maybe this season Danny and Reuben might even get along!
