

 for the show. David, as all of his fans know, is the son of the multi-talented Jack Cassidy. But that meant little. For there are many great stars in Hollywood who give birth to offspring with little or no talent. So when David opened his mouth to sing his way through an audition, the shock of hearing a great voice, plus seeing his remarkably groovy face was too much. Just too much.

David is one of the few performers from the show who is able to tour in person because of his remarkable ability to sing. And when he does, the crowds are standing room only.

 Screaming, fainting girls fill his audiences to a capacity. Not since the early days of Elvis Presley has there been such an idol. David, like Elvis, has that special something to turn girls on—of all ages!

But what kind of girl turns David on?
