It's difficult to predict that anything unpleasant can happen to you in the year to come, for each day will only serve to increase your popularity and prestige, until you are very much astride the world, with many followers from many different countries, all avid to see you, read of you and hear your records.

Certainly, an enormous tour of a great deal of the world is indicated, which will have a marked effect on your increasing fame, even in some cases putting your well being in jeopardy, as over-enthusiastic fans strive to gain a memento of you, in the way of a piece of torn clothing, a lock of hair or an ear!

Perhaps the greatest problem that will face you is during the inevitable period when you must finally part company with those who initially shared your leap towards stardom on the television networks of the world: soon you will be so much more a celebrity than your once equals that it will become impracticable for you to do other than highly lucrative guest appearances, and unhappily, the popularity of the rest of your television family will wane.

Although you may feel remorse at such events, it is fated that you will inexorably become the most talked about part of your TV gang, and no amount of compensating on your part can conceal the fact that your talent will always shine through.

In the field of romance no single lucky lady will be blessed with your attentions, as you will have the pick of many adoring fans, and will grace several extremely fortunate admirers with your attentions, although not finding in any of them all the elusive qualities you would like to find in your perfect woman.

Seemingly, you will bestow a great deal of affection on a pet, who will provide you with simple comfort when the world seems to be revolving perhaps a little too fast.

A minor physical injury may provoke world wide headlines, but its impact will be negligible and very soon afterwards you will return to the adoration of your many devotees.
