

Fortunately, David is smart enough to see through most of these girls. He can usually tell when a girl is trying to use him and he can avoid it.

Sometimes he even manages to use them just like they try to use him. If he has to go somewhere in public with a date, he'll sometimes take one of "those girls" rather than expose a girl he really cares about to the sometimes frightening experience of facing a mass of photographers and reporters.

But more often he just avoids them and sticks with the girls he knows are true friends—girls who don't want anything more from him than friendship.

You Can Help

You can help David with the problems he has with "those girls." You can show him that you are a true fan and that you really do care about him. You can show him that not everyone wants to use him for their own gain.

You can do so by just continuing to be a faithful fan—by buying his records and going to his concerts and watching his TV show.

There's more you can do—you can not bug him in his private life. You can realize that he's not superman, that he does need food and rest and time alone to himself just like everyone else. And you can refuse to believe any rumors you hear about him until you've checked them out with a reliable source. (Write FLIP—we'll tell you the truth!)

And if you get a chance to meet him in person, you can be your own honest, sincere self—he'll see then that you really do care about him for himself and aren't just trying to impress someone else or get someone else to notice you.

You are the only person who can show David that not all girls want to use him. You can protect him from "those girls." You are the key to David's happiness.
