

come up to me, and thought I was David from behind at a glance. But that's because it's all so dark on the set."

What were you doing before you got the job on the show?

"I was an airline stewardess with flying Tiger Airlines, flying military to Vietnam. I did that for about five months. I was based in Seattle between flights, and I did a lot of wild things there—I got into things like salmon-fishing and strawberry-picking and baking pies. Really unique things."

How did you feel working on an airline that flew men to and from Vietnam, and to and from the war zone?

"Well, I couldn't think of a nicer person to welcome the boys home. You're sad about it, but it's going on, whether you're flying them over there or sitting in your living room. I think the sad thing is meeting guys, or just meeting anybody you like, and then having to say good-bye to them, because you're on the plane with them for eight hours. But it's a great feeling when you pick the guys up and they're on their way home."

What did you think of Vietnam?

"Well, I've been in Camranh Bay and Ben Hoa. Camranh Bay is really pretty. It's not Miami, but the beach is gorgeous. It's not pretty what's going on over there, but it's a beautiful place. They even have water skiing over there for the guys—but that's Camranh, I wasn't in the jungles."

Were you within range of the fighting?

"No. They had rockets they shot off on the base. But I'm sure if there was anything going on, we wouldn't fly in. At any rate, it was an experience."

"Anyway, I did that for about five months. Then I came back and worked as a model. Then I doubled with a girl named Cindy Williams on a stunt for the Bobby Sherman show. I had to tackle a stunt man who was doubling Wes Stern. After that I worked on The Partridge Family, where they asked me to stand in. For a while I was even taking an arts class in ceramics at The Muddy Wheel, an art school."

Right now Jan is making the most of her life. She's young, attractive, has a job many a teen-ager would give her eye tooth to have—just to be near him! "David's fantastic!" she spouts. "He really does have this tremendous magnetism, charisma. I didn't realize it until one day he was performing on the set, and I noticed that all eyes were glued on him, young and old alike. He's really great!"

Jan was born in Los Angeles and has always lived in California. Her mother is a housewife, and her father owns Central Alarm, a company that manufactures burglar alarms, in Salt Lake City, Utah. Jan lives just off Laurel Canyon, near where David used to live until his fans' adoration and curiosity forced him to move. She has a roommate, Susan Miller, whose professional plans are about as unique as Jan's job. Susan wants to be a barrel racer in a rodeo—that's the gal who rides the horse around the barrels. Jan and Susan share the house with three dogs—Susan's two, an Australian Shepherd named Sydney and a German Shepherd, Annie; Jan has a Schnauzer, F. Scott Fitzgerald, whom she affectionately calls "Fritzie," and who, Jan claims, likes horseback riding and sailing.
