honest and bringing it out in the open.
Debbie Weiss; Bridgeport, Conn.

Dear FLIP,

In the Sept. issue of FLIP, David Cassidy's column "Between Us" was all about how he spent his birthday in bed because he was sick. In another mag it said he had a party. It also showed pics of the party. Who is right? Yvette Walker; Chicago, Ill.

Would you believe that both mags are right?? David did have a birthday party, but it wasn't on the day of his birthday, since he was sick that day.

Dear FLIP,

I doubt if you'll print this, but I just had to write anyway. Last Sunday night at David Cassidy's concert I found out what a real person he is. I've liked David since the first time I saw him on Marcus Welby, M.D., but tonight was a real experience for me and every other girl there. He didn't want to waste any time, so he didn't spend much time talking to us, but what he did say was really great. He didn't talk down to us like he could have, but instead he was talking to us like we were his age. When he dedicated "Brown Eyes" to all the girls there with brown eyes, I bet every girl's eyes turned brown for the song! D.K.; Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear FLIP,

When my family and I went to Kings Island on August 9th, we saw the Partridge Family in front of the fountain. That is when I saw how handsome David Cassidy is. Please put more pics of David Cassidy in your upcoming fall issues. Kelley Crimins; Louisville, Ky.

We sure will, Kelley—and did you know that the Partridges spent a whole week filming at Kings Island, outside Cincinnati? And since FLIP goes everywhere the Partridges go, we'll have the whole story—and exclusive pics—of their stay at Kings Island in next month's issue!

Dear FLIP,

I don't believe it! I don't believe it! There is no way you can make me believe it. I don't believe that David Cassidy is the kind of person you portrayed in your September issue (David: The Day He "Took It All Off!") I don't think David would expose himself to that kind of trash for everyone to see, and I don't think he would get mixed up in some underground magazine like "Rolling Stone." I've never known FLIP to say anything untrue, but I don't believe that article! Elizabeth Lindsay; Sweden, Ky.

If you're determined not to believe the article, then nothing we say is gonna change your mind! But read on—you'll see that most FLIP-ers don't agree with you!

Dear FLIP,

I'm really glad that you explained about the "Rolling Stone" article on David in your Sept. issue! Even when I heard about it, it didn't really shock me, because I knew that David's quotes had been turned around. In Carol Deck's book, "The David Cassidy Story," it explains that David had a difficult time during his teenage years, but got straightened out. Anyway, those pictures of David aren't shocking! The human body is beautiful, and I think that's what David felt, too. I can love David more because I know both parts of him! Thanks again for explaining everything! Theresa Strickland; Scarborough, Ont.

Dear FLIP,

I just want to thank you for telling it like it is! I loved your article on David Cassidy's "Rolling Stone" article. Other magazines build him up to be perfect. I'm glad somebody's got the nerve to let us know he's human! Dianne Starnes; Grant, Ala.

Dear FLIP,

I'm glad Carol Deck cleared up that mess that was caused by David Cassidy's article in "Rolling Stone." I read "Rolling Stone" and I love David Cassidy, but I didn't get torn to pieces like some of his fans did. I'm glad someone finally showed us that David isn't the perfect angel some magazines make him out to be. I was beginning to wonder what kind of superboy he was to be so perfect and nice! At least now I know he's like most 22-year-old men I know—which to my way of thinking is a compliment! Annette Banks; New York, N.Y.

Dear FLIP,

Thank you for being honest and writing the true facts about David Cassidy. I wrote to a different magazine that hides the true facts. I wrote them a mean letter, because they don't tell the truth! Thanks for being
