

lied and pretended couldn't hold Donny for very long.

He'll want her to be about to show her deepest feelings without being ashamed or self-conscious. But at the same time, he'll want a girl to have poise and self-control, not to get all worked up over every little thing.

When Donny finds a girl like that, he'll be able to say to her, "I want your kisses. I want your love. Not just for today, but forever." Could you be the girl who someday hears Donny say those wonderful words to you?

DAVID

a girl. And so he keeps looking, hoping, searching.

Why is it so hard for David to find the girl he seeks?

His career has something to do with it. Every now and then, at a concert, a girl will come up and talk to him for a moment and he'll find himself thinking, "maybe she's the one." But then she disappears into the crowd and he has a busy schedule to follow, and somehow, he doesn't get a chance to see her again.

Or maybe he dates a girl, and thinks that maybe she's the one for him. And then, all at once, he starts to wonder if she really cares about him as a person. Or is she just thrilled at the idea of being seen out in public with David Cassidy, the star?

Or does she have career plans of her own, and does she hope that by being seen with David, her own career will be helped?

David is the kind of person who is very cautious about falling in love completely and giving his heart to any girl. And maybe he isn't too much to blame for his uncertainty.

He can't help remembering how his own parents, who had started out so much in love, got a divorce when he was only a little boy, and although afterwards his father was happily married to Shirley Jones, who plays his mother on The Partridge Family, that marriage is now on the rocks.

Yes, David knows that even though two people may think they are in love forever and ever, that it doesn't always work out that way. No matter how much two people love each other, there can be problems, and sometimes those problems can be serious enough to make them part forever.

"Suppose I were to meet a girl and really fall in love with her, and then find out that she couldn't accept the kind of life I have to lead because of my work. I don't think I could take it, if something like that happened to me."

If you are the girl David is looking for, you'll love him for himself, alone. And you'll want him to be able to go on with his career, even if it means making sacrifices, spending lonely nights waiting for him to come home.

If you are the girl David will fall in love with, you are beautiful. Maybe you don't have perfect features or a gorgeous shape, but that's not the kind of beauty David is looking for. If those outward things were all he wanted he'd have found them long ago, because Hollywood is full of beautiful girls.

The kind of beauty David is looking for is an inner beauty, something that shines in a girl's eyes, that makes her walk proud and tall, that makes people feel good just to look at her.

It's a feminine thing, too. That doesn't mean that you have to wear frilly dresses all the time, or have curly hair or long, fluttery eyelashes.

"A girl can be completely feminine in blue jeans and a sweater," David believes. "It's all in the way she talks and moves and smiles at you."

Maybe it sounds kind of old-fashioned, but David's girl will have to be gentle and kind. She'll have to love little children, and old people, and like animals. Her voice will be soft and low-pitched, so that listening to her speak will be like listening to the sound of waves on the shore or the murmur of the wind in the trees.

Could you be all these things to David? We hope so, because David needs a girl to love, a girl he can call his own. And until he finds her, he'll keep searching.

get rid of the accumulated debris that clogs the pores. Exercising the way Susan does — swimming, hiking, camping — is just great for getting and staying healthy. And, of course, it keeps her out in the fresh air, too, which is also great for the lungs and blood circulation.

But please note, as Susan has already: be careful with the sun! Too much suntan is dangerous. Be sure to have some kind of protection, as Susan does, to prevent sunburn, which can be both painful and dangerous. Wear a broadbrimmed hat, keep out of the direct sunlight too much at the beach, and keep your skin lubricated. A good sunscreen lotion is a wise investment. Plain baby oil will be fine. You don't have to spend a lot of money for fancy lotions.

That's one of the tricks Susan learned when she was a model. How to keep the cost of cosmetics down. Honest, she just doesn't use a lot of gook on her face. What she does do is keep her skin soft and pretty with some simple concoctions, which are going to be shared with you right now.

First off, keep makeup off your face as much as possible. That means, especially, that you never, never,
