

DAVID CASSIDY:

Everyone needs a little corner of the world where he can dream his dreams and think of what life has yet to bring. David Cassidy is no different. He's found his little corner in the island paradise of Maui!

David burrowed his head deeper into the pillow. But he couldn't escape the harsh ringing of the telephone. His hand groped for the receiver. "Good morning. It's eight o'clock!" The words made David open his eyes and look around the room. Sitting up, a smile spread across his face as he placed the receiver back onto its cradle.

It was eight o'clock in the morning and he was in paradise! He remembered how tired he'd been when he arrived the night before, and how he had left a call to be awakened at eight in the morning.

NO TIME TO LOSE

There was so much to do and so little time—a week to spend in paradise. David hurriedly dressed and ate a light breakfast and within an hour he found himself walking along the beach alone.

The rhythmic ebb and flow of the tides created a feeling of peace within him. Although he loved his life as an entertainer, he needed times like this to search out and re-evaluate all the things that were important to him.

He bent down to pick up a palm frond and sat down to listen to the ocean's lullaby. The blue of the sky was perfectly matched in the color of the water. David closed his eyes and leaned against the giant palm tree. But only for a minute because he had no time to lose. Maui had too many wonders to enjoy besides the beauty of the soft sandy beach.

MEMORIES

When David would leave his island paradise, he would take with him a treasure of memories of his short adventure there.

The walk in the forest after the gentle shower of rain. He would remember how he picked his way through the emerald green growth. The drops of rain sparkled like diamonds on the leaves and flowers. David smiled as he walked along because he knew that even if the drops were real diamonds, they could never improve the magnificence of Nature's work.

And he would remember the morning he met the two children on the beach. He had left the hotel early to take a long swim and when he finished, he saw two