

LIVING

I'm currently sleeping in the maid's room (no jokes) but my permanent sleeping quarters will be this really far-out little guest house that's behind the big house, out in the lemon trees. It's got a bedroom and a kitchen, and two little rooms, which we'll probably use for storage and stuff. I can't wait to get in there and start fixing it up! It's all full of this neat pine wood, and I really think it's going to look outasite.

Another thing I love about the guest house is that it's kind of in the middle of a jungle! There are all these fruit trees behind it, and the grass is as high as your knees, because it's not really the kind of back yard where you mow the lawn—we want it to be as natural as possible, so we can feel like we're about twelve hundred miles from the city! Right near the guest house is the swimming pool, and it's really enormous. This summer, I have a feeling that we're never going to get out of it!

Of course, we've got decorating plans for every square foot, if we ever get around to it! I can just see us, painting the entire house and then arranging our boxes for the nicest effect, because we hadn't ever unpacked!

Anyway, the people who lived here ahead of us weren't frightened of color, and they splashed a lot around, which is really nice because it'll save us some work. There are deep blues and rust oranges, and we're going to keep those in—and then we'll have a ghost party and invite all the people who have ever owned any of these things, and we'll share a silent glass of champagne with all these cobwebbed old ghosts in their stiff dusty clothes. All right, I'll drop it.

Anyway, that's the story about our new house. There's a ton of stuff I haven't told you, but I'll hold onto it and drop it cunningly into future chapters whenever I need it.

NOW, WELCOME TO MY future pad. The owners are living in this guest house until they find a new house, then I'll be moving in here! It's just a few hundred feet behind the big house and it's like a cabin!

THIS IS SHEESH'S new home and she just loves it. She didn't even get mad when I decided to invade! Actually, she only uses it sometimes, 'cause she sleeps with Dave.

From the outside the house is especially neat, with this absolutely enormous California Maple tree that grows up from the center of the big "U" the house is built in, and completely shades the roof. The tree is in the center of a big courtyard, and I think there used to be a fountain there, because it's all tiled like there was one once.

colors going. In fact we're going to paint the ceiling a deep, deep blue that'll look like the night-time sky, and we're going to look around for old Spanish furniture, really heavy and dark and old-looking, like hundreds of really far-out people have been using it—tables that old love letters were written on, and chairs that Nobles sat

WELL, THAT'S THE $2.00 TOUR! Hope you liked this mini-trip around the new house and grounds. David & I love it and I'll keep you up-to-date as we fix the place up!

Hey, listen, here's one last decoration idea. David thinks he may wallpaper his office with pictures of his fans, so why don't you send us a snapshot? You could wind up on David's wall!

Take care of yourself until next time. We love you.
