Bobby sad, but hopeful about future!

I'm sure you were as upset as I was when you heard the word about BOBBY'S show "Getting Together" being cancelled. I talked to BOBBY the week he came back from Hawaii and he said he felt rested and rejuvenated and was ready and eager to go back to work. Of course, he was sad about the show, but he has been through some pretty heavy disappointments before and I guess he's pretty good at coping with them. He told me he was going to spend some time recording, working on his Cancer Fund, and then get back on the concert trail.

So moving was quite a task, but now that we're settled, we can get busy turning out the best (she said, modestly) magazine sold today!

The point of telling you all this is to make sure you're aware of our new

As we were going to press, I learned that DAVID will be making his European vacation, but since he hasn't left yet (as I write this) I can't really give you any news. When I saw him on the "Partridge" set last week he could only tell me he was super excited and that his plans, once he touched down on European soil weren't definite.

Taking his cameras to Europe!

Wes says he's in unemployment line!

The day after the news was officially announced by ABC-TV, I got a phone call from WES STERN. He sounded sad, too, and it was so hard to convey how bad I felt about the show. He agreed with me when I said, "It's just too bad that the show didn't have a chance in another time slot."
