—a fantastic set of blue drums. When his parents learned that Brian had his heart set on learning to play, they decided to make his dream come true.

"I'm taking lessons," he says proudly, "and I practice every chance I get."

When he's not drumming, Brian can be found playing with his dog and cats. In fact, he's proven it's possible for a dog to live happily and peacefully with more than a dozen cats underfoot. And his mother is especially thankful that Max gets along so well with the Himalayan cats she's raising, too. Now both mother and son are giving out a lot of neighborly advice on this very subject.

"When my friends have any questions about their cats, they turn to my mother or me for an answer," says Brian, "in fact, they almost consider us authorities!"

With such a menagerie, it's not surprising that one of Brian's other talents is tree climbing. No matter how hard he tries, it's almost impossible for him to pass by the tall ones without finding himself going up and away. As a matter of fact, he's not content with just climbing to the top. His real thrill is feeling the branches sway as he crawls to the end of the limb. In case you're wondering if he's worried about falling, he's not.

"I dig rocking and rolling," Brian grins "whether it's on The Partridge set or right in my own backyard."
