

being themselves because it really makes them seem more real, don't you think?

Well, no matter what you think about that, I haven't finished talking about this vacation yet, so we'll get back to the subject. I heard Shirley mention she was going to New York—I don't think she would be gone for the whole two weeks because she does like to be at home with her children. Maybe in the next column I can fill you in on more of the details of what Shirley did do. And Dave Madden—well, he's prob-David has one. I can't wait to see their vacation pictures!

By the way, there is a very nice habit on the set to tape pictures or articles about members of the Family on the side of the camera—for all to notice. When the TV Guide covers come out, up they go on the side of the camera. When a picture of Danny was printed in the Partridge Family Magazine that was cute and funny (one of Danny as a baby), it was taped on the side of the camera. And during the last week of work, a picture taken by Dan-ably resting from all the promotion tours he's been doing with Danny lately. I read some press clippings about those tours, and I can see that Dave and Danny really are Mr. Kincaid and Danny Partridge when they are out in public. Sometimes I ask Danny if he's going somewhere on the coming weekend, and he will say very casually, "Oh, yes, this weekend we're going to Rhode Island, Texas, New Jersey,"—or any other state you could mention. He's certainly getting a lot of mileage out of his youth fare card!

I would guess that Dave Madden is taking the chance to follow his hobby, photography, during his vacation. Pretty soon I won't be able to say, "Photography is Dave Madden's hobby," because I'll have to say, "Photography is everybody's hobby on the 'Partridge Family' set." I never saw so many cameras and people posing or pretending not to be posing or being surprised in the middle of "not posing." First it was Dave Madden; then at Marineland Suzanne, Brian, and Danny had cameras; then Susan bought one, and now ny of one of the crew members appeared. It's really like a miniature art show—but with all these photographers now, I think the Partridge set is going to have to get a larger camera!

Speaking of nice things that happen on the set, another pleasant surprise occasionally happens when one of the crew members or one of the cast brings in a home-made goody for everyone to taste. So far we've had molasses-nut bread, fresh bagels and all kinds of trimmings for them, and a favorite of Susan's—carrot pudding. (Yes, carrot pudding!) And then, on Friday nights, there is always a small "end of the week" party with some type of special menu—say Chinese food or something like that. On Fridays, if someone has taken the time to bring in a favorite recipe masterpiece, everyone runs the risk of going home and not being hungry for dinner!

Well, I hate to stop here, but I have a few things to do. First I have to make some carrot pudding, then I would like to be outside shooting some pictures with my camera! See you next month.

YOU Can Interview DAVID!

TIGER BEAT'S Editor Ann Moses has been interviewing and talking with David Cassidy for over two years. TIGER BEAT has printed hundreds and hundreds of questions and answers from David. But we know from your letters that there are still some things you've been wondering about. So, here's your chance to get your most secret questions answered!

All you have to do is send in your question on a post card. No letters or envelopes—please! Just send one question on each post card, but send as many post cards as you like. Then, Ann Moses will ask David YOUR question and you'll see his answer published right here in TIGER BEAT. We'll print your name under the question, too!

It's as simple as can be and a super way to find out all the intimate and personal things you've been wondering about David Cassidy! Remember, your question is more likely to be published if it's original and something that hasn't already been printed about David in past issues of TIGER BEAT!

Don't wait a minute—the earlier you send in your questions, the sooner you'll see David's honest answers right here in TIGER BEAT! Address your post cards to:
