

DAVID: "When I get to really movin' on stage, dancing and groovin' with the audience, I feel super soulful! I give the audience all the love in my heart! Since singing is my life, I live to please you when I'm onstage! The good vibrations you give me make me feel even higher!"

DAVID: "I feel like I'm going to explode as the music from the band gets louder and heavier! I get so carried away that I jump three feet off the ground! The electric current of excitement that flashes through the entire auditorium sweeps me off my feet! It gives me the energy to do all kinds of leaps and jumps that I wouldn't ordinarily do!"

DAVID: "I pause to wipe my forehead and spend a few minutes rapping with the audience. I feel physically drained, but the cheers and applause from the crowd tell me that everyone's feelin' good! That charges me up all over again!"

DAVID: "Sometimes when I sing a number that I've never sung in concert before, I feel a little nervous. I also feel kind of nervous when I'm just about to go on stage. But the feeling always disappears right away when I look down into the audience and see the love and trust shining in the eyes of my fans."

DAVID: "At the end of the show, when I hear the screams and cheers from the audience, I know that I did my best and that you've enjoyed the show! I feel proud that I've made everyone happy, and as I run off the stage to go back to my hotel room, I feel a warm glow inside!"
