one. David began to get upset and so did Tammy. Sure, they really liked each other, but they couldn't stand being on display. And so, mutually, they decided they had to stop dating.

It hurt both of them, but they knew they weren't in love. They didn't want to have to defend themselves from prying eyes. And so they did the most natural thing they could. They each started dating around quite a bit, and soon the rumors about them stopped. David and Tammy are still friends, but privately. Someday maybe they'll date again. Maybe.

THE MOST IMPORTANT GIRL IN THE WORLD

This may seem really weird but there's a girl David thinks about most of all, one he'll never forget—and he's never even met her! She's been appearing in his dreams for a couple of years now, but he just hasn't come face-to-face with her. He's not even sure exactly what she looks like, but he can see her face smiling at him, sometimes even when he's awake. He'll look up at the sky and she'll be looking down at him. She's not interested in material things, only in David. She shares his love for animals and life and just being out in the tall grass on a summer day. Sometimes David can hear her voice. It's very soft and whispery as she leans close to him.

"David, I love you. You're my whole life," it says.

"David smiles secretly. 'I love you,' he whispers softly to her. And his eyes shine.

The Jacksons are—like many of you—part of a large, close family. And, like you, sometimes they don't exactly see eye-to-eye. Didn't you ever have an argument with a brother you love very much? Well, occasional arguments occur in everyone's family. The Jacksons are just normal people—like you and your family. In fact, they're probably together even more often than you are with your family!

Think of it this way: many of you have interests outside of your family—you don't go to the same schools, you don't have the same friends, you don't always spend every minute of the weekends with your
