

SUSAN & DAVID:

You know them as "Laurie and Keith Partridge, brother and sister." But offstage, the affection they have for each other isn't being acted as Susan Dey and David Cassidy laugh and talk with each other off the set.

The cameras may not be turning but there's no chance that anyone can miss the genuine and special relationship that they have!

WHO CAN SAY?

From the very beginning, David noticed Susan. It happened that they were both in the same group of people that were being auditioned for the show "The Partridge Family." Of course, anyone with eyes would have noticed Susan out of the crowd—her poise, her sweet, shy smile, and her beautiful eyes and hair make most people take a second, and longer, look. The nervousness of that day had most of the people staring at the floor. But not David and Susan! Of course they were nervous—but they were even more excited!

Who can say what attracts one person to another? For David, Susan's friendliness and maturity were extra bonuses to the fact of her being so pretty. Before long, the two of them were talking and laughing, almost forgetting that they still had to audition for the show!

GLAD FOR EACH OTHER

When they discovered that they had both been cast, nothing could have pleased them more. Susan was thrilled about her first acting job and knowing David was going to be a part of it made it that much nicer. David felt the same way.

"So many times an actor finds that the people he works with aren't the types he can also be real friends with. There just isn't enough in common to base a friendship on. With Susan, I knew it was going to be easy to relate to her—she's good and kind, and she cares about others."

From the first moment on, David knew he'd found something special in Susan. He could talk to her about everything. There were silences during their conversations, but
