10 Reasons Why I Smile

YOUTH: I don't usually think about my age very much, but every once in awhile I get reminded how lucky I am that I'm young enough to have a lifetime's worth of joys and experiences ahead of me! It would be a big bummer to think that all the good times of life were behind me instead of waiting for me in my future!

FREEDOM: I've been lucky enough to have an independent streak in me—and with that independence I've been able to exercise lots of freedoms that other people have never known existed. The most important freedom of all is that I've been free to be me—David Cassidy. I've never had to pretend to be somebody else!

TRAVEL: Since "Partridge" began there's been an important reason why I wear a happy smile on my face—the show's given me the chance to do a lot more of the traveling that all young people dream of doing! I've been to cities in the United States during my concerts that I want to visit again soon. Hawaii is really a heaven on earth—and during the "Partridge" hiatus I traveled through Europe. And what's even more exciting is that there's still so much more of the world to see—so many more foreign lands to get to know. I hope I get the chance to see more of the world—that'd be fantastic!

SIGHT: I read a quote somewhere that went: "Beauty seen is never lost." That's really true—and I'm thankful that I've got two good eyes to see all the beautiful things that this earth has to offer. Can you imagine a life without getting to see a cherry tree blooming in spring, the shimmering waters of the ocean, a snow-capped mountain, sea gulls in flight, a sunset? The list could go on for miles!

FRIENDS: Another quote defines a friend as: "A friend is a present you give yourself." The gift of friendship is one I don't take lightly but one that I treasure. In the last two years of my life, I've met some outasite people I'm very proud to call my friends... and you know what? You are one of my best and closest friends of all!
