There is nothing like the loyalty between a boy and his dog, right? Well, you haven't seen a boy and his horse! Danny Bonaduce, having spent a year without a horse, has finally bought a new one!

"I loved Patience when I had him, but you should see my new horse," Danny tells people. "His name is Chief . . . although my mom wanted to name him Chiefton. He's an Apaloosa . . . brown and white, and he's a show horse. He's beautiful! I took him out riding the first day, and he was really spirited. I was a little nervous at first because he's so big, but we got used to each other pretty quickly!"

"I told Danny that we wouldn't buy the first horse we looked at, so he'd better be prepared to look for quite a while. Dan agreed, but when the people who were selling the horses brought our Chief, I couldn't resist . . . even if he was the first horse we looked at. I asked the salesman to bring out another horse, just so I could say we looked at two!"

Danny continued with the story:

"Since shooting has stopped for awhile, I have a lot of time on my hands. I'll be able to give Chief all kinds of attention. I'll get home from school, and go right over to the horse . . . we can't keep him in the back yard, but someday I'm going to ride him and bring him to the house, just for fun!"

BACK AT SCHOOL

Since shooting has ended for awhile, the three little Partridges are back in "regular school." Brian Forster had this to say:

"I really liked going back to school. All my friends were there, and they all told me that they watch the show every week, and that they really like it a lot. I liked going to school on the set, but I have to admit, seeing all my friends again is great!"

Suzanne was equally happy about going back to school!

"I like playing on the monkey bars, and being with people my own age! My friends always seem glad to see me too! Mrs. Anderson, our teacher on the set was really nice, and I kind of want to see her again, so I'm happy no matter what I'm doing."

"I like being in school, too," Danny chimed in. "Last year, I used to get into trouble with some of the kids, but this year, I've made all kinds of friends! Sometimes when you're working all day on the set, you lose touch with everybody, and you have to start over each time you go back to school. I remember the first day of school was great, I had a good report card from Mrs. Anderson, and everything!"

SUZANNE CROUGH'S SISTER GETTING MARRIED

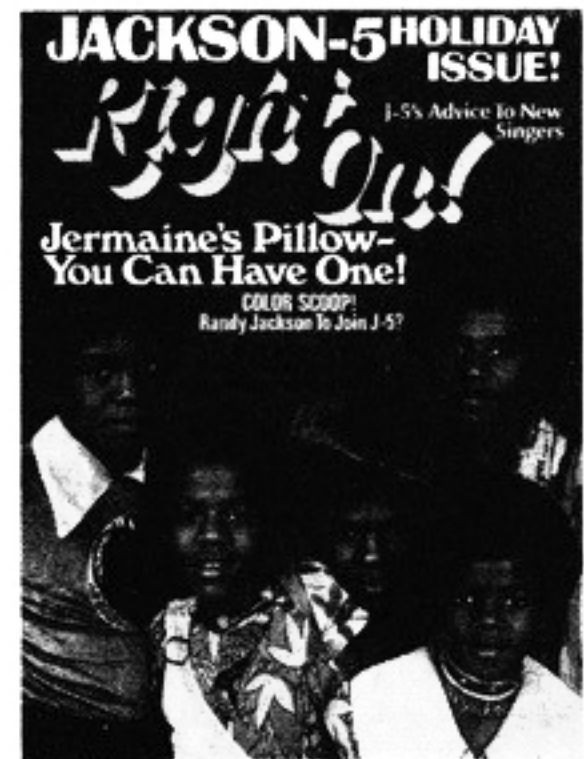

While I was talking to the little Partridges about school, Suzanne suddenly changed the subject!

"Did you know that my sister, Gail is getting married? I'm really excited! Gail sometimes gets nervous, but I've heard my mother say that that's very
