

OIL OF MINK
A gift of love for the skin.

Today's woman looks young, feels young, and wants to remain young. That's why Koscot has developed a complete line of oil of mink cosmetics for her. Oil of Mink is a remarkable cosmetic discovery that truly achieves the benefits it promises. It replenishes the natural skin oils that age and weather take away. Those tiny little telltale lines just disappear! Koscot cosmetics go to work immediately to balance skin chemistry, removing causes for dry, oily or troubled skin. Your skin regains the suppleness of its youth.

person climbs in his chosen career, the bigger and better he should become as a person. He admits he's delighted with his success, and has no desire to ever have to be a construction worker and poor again. He loves being recognized because he went for so many years without anyone knowing him and fewer people than he cared to admit caring about what happened to him.

He is a strong man, physically and emotionally. He is sure of himself and it shows. He has green eyes that look right through you; thick, dark, curly hair, and a touch of Welsh brogue. His favorite pastime is—sleeping! He would like to make movies, but he is in no particular rush to do so because right now he is enjoying doing concerts. (Which he prefers to TV!) He likes live audiences, and really turns on when he's on stage. Someday, he says, he'll slow down and take it easier, which is when he'd like to do movies—if the right script comes along. The "right script" would NOT call for him to do nude scenes. He figures that is okay for women, but as far as he is concerned, a man looks foolish.

I was so sorry that "Funny Face" was cancelled! I just loved Sandy Duncan. Did she have to have plastic surgery done on her face after her eye operation? And if so, how long before we can expect to see her back in show business?

(Donald Pleure, Richmond, Va.)
The show was not cancelled, luckily! Sandy made such a smash hit, the network decided to merely show reruns since the tumor was discovered and surgery was required before she had made enough shows to fill out the whole season. So she is now taking a vacation from the series and will be back in the fall. However, she is NOT taking things easy! Miraculously she bounced right back; and not only looks great, but feels great. She has been making guest appearances—which sounds like WORK to her friends in Hollywood, but so far she insists it hasn't done her any harm. Besides, Sandy is totally committed to her career, and can't stand being idle! Even when she was fresh out of the hospital, she relaxed (?) with a stack of scripts—looking for a potential property to star in!

involved for long days on TV sets. Often he has to rush afterwards to a recording studio to sing for his records at night.

When he emerges, he's quickly surrounded by fans. He greets them warmly because he's genuinely friendly. I know no star more grateful for opportunities. David accepts all the obligations heaped upon him as the price for his career.

But he can't go to the shows he'd like to catch. He can't take a girl out anywhere, or even shop anymore, in America without fans sharing this time. That's flattering, but neither relaxing nor right for dating. David needed a complete change, just as we all do.

By the end of last December, he'd finished his second year's work on the series
