DAVID: THE GIRL I PLAN TO MARRY

(Continued from page 8)

What would it be like, he wonders, as he kicks off his shoes and sprawls in his favorite chair by the window, to be greeted each night by a very special girl?

She wouldn't have to be a spectacular beauty. David has met countless beautiful girls and he is no longer impressed by sheer physical beauty alone.

The girl David plans to marry will have to be, above all, a warm, outgoing sort of person. She will have to be able to give love, not only to him, but also to their children. David thinks that children are important to family happiness, and he wants a girl who shares his feelings about this.

And she will have to like people outside the family circle, to have friends of her own, and to be able to accept David's friends and make them feel welcome.

So, if you daydream about being David's wife, ask yourself, very honestly, whether you are the sort of girl he has in mind.

Maybe you've already had the experience of being really gone on a guy, and then you meet his friends and—you just can't stand them. When this happens, do you at least try to be polite, or do you scheme to break up these friendships?

David is very loyal to his friends, and any girl who tried to break up his friendships would find that she had made a big mistake.

Also, if you were David's girl, and you made scenes when his work kept you appart, he'd soon lose interest in you. The girl David plans to marry will have to understand that his work is an essential part of his life, and she'll have to be willing to stand aside, at times, and let his work schedule come firet

This doesn't mean he won't be thinking about her when they're apart. It just means she won't be able to be the "clinging vine" type.

It goes without saying, that the girl David marries will have to share his love of music. She won't necessarily have to be a performer herself—that wouldn't matter to David.

But when he talked about music, she'd have to listen and understand just how much it meant to him.

She'd have to understand, too, that David has big plans for the future—plans his wife would have to share. He wants to have his own recording studio some day, and maybe go into film-making. These things, too, would take time, and she'd have to be understanding.

But let's face it—any girl who is lucky enough to win David's love, would probably be willing to make a few sacrifices along the way. Because, in return, she'd be getting a warm, wonderful, devoted guy. Someone who's honest and sincere, someone she can rely on through the years. And what girl could ask for anything better?

STEPHANIE: WHAT BOYS EXPECT FROM ME

(Continued from page 17)

the New York City Ballet Co., which is still in force.

She's also been lucky because of the wonderful close relationship she's always had with her family. She was born in Geneva, New York, and is the only girl in the family—her brothers are Tommy, 17, and Drew, 13. Maybe part if the reason she understands boys so well, is because of the experience of being the only girl in the family.

The Steeles moved to Santa Monica, California when Stephanie was still very young. She went to grammar school in Santa Monica, and then to Marymount High School up to grade nine. She was head cheerleader and a track and-field star specializing in the shot putt.

She graduated from high school—the Colin McEven School—at 15.

Stephanie has never been put off by hard work, and really thrives on it. When she was still working six days a week at her ballet practice, she found time to begin modeling for TV commercials. Since then, she has done additional TV commercials, radio commercials and "voice overs" for TV and motion pictures.

But if this sounds like a routine of all work and no play—it isn't. She still has managed to find time for dating and for an active social life.

While she firmly believes that there are things that boys shouldn't expect from her, or from any dates, she also feels that there are lots of other things they have every right to expect.

"It should go without saying that a boy has a right to expect a girl to look her best, when he takes her out on a date."

This doesn't mean she has to be a beauty, or that she has to spend a fortune on clothes or make-up—not at all. "What boys like is a clean, neat, put-together look."

As her pictures show, Stephanie favors long hair, not teased up or overstyled. But it must be squeaky clean and well-brushed.

If a girl wants to wear make-up, she mustn't overdo. A girl with gobs of make-up can give a date the wrong inpression, and some girls overdo in this department because they are shy and unsure of themselves. They don't think that a boy will be impressed by their real, natural looks.

Here, again, Stephanie thinks a girl must decide what is right for her, and not just wear a certain kind of makeup or do her hair in a certain way, because "everyone else is doing it."

Keeping in shape has never been a problem for Stephanie, with her ballet exercises, and her athletic activities. "Even a nice long walk on the beach will do wonders for your body, and your complexion, too," she believes.

Stephanie has always been honest with the boys she dates. She isn't

(Continued on page 64)

Order today! This is nostalgia at its very best!

SCREEN GREATS—An anthology of 101 superstars.

HUMPHREY BOGART-Bogie and Bacall, his Rat Pack, his Feuds.

CLARK GABLE—Why he didn't want to do "Gone With The Wind," his tragic marriage to Lombard.

MARILYN MONROE—The unsolved mystery of her death Her husbands, her lovers.

SPENCER TRACY & KATH-ARINE HEPBURN A double treat! The immortal love story.

Barven Publications Inc.
271 Madison Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10016
Include 75c for each volume ordered.

□ SCREEN GREATS □ BOGART
□ GABLE □ MARILYN
□ TRACY & HEPBURN
□ COOPER

Name .
Street
State
Zip	dd 25 cent	s handling per	order.