WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT DAVID

does—things that could be a little strange!

For instance, it isn't unusual for David to be almost ready for bed when suddenly he'll get back into his clothes! Why? For a midnight stroll, of course!

He'll climb into his car and drive to his favorite spot on the beach. Then he'll trot down to the water's edge, his feet playing with the gentle waves—he'll run down the beach and back again until he's used up that extra energy!

When he gets home again, he can fall into a sound and restful sleep. And don't be surprised—he might want you to go along with him!

Strange? Well, that's what David likes to do! And one thing about David: When he gets an urge to do something, he'll drop everything right then and there—and do it!

STRANGE DATES?

In the same way, David's dating habits could be thought of as strange—he likes spur-of-the-moment dates and usually has more fun that way rather than if something is so planned out that there's no room for change.

It could be common for David to call you at 6 in the morning, wildly enthusiastic. "Let's go fishing!" he might say, so you would have to pop out of bed and try to become enthused yourself!

Also, the time of the day doesn't mean a lot to David. Naturally, he has to keep to a schedule and get his necessary sleep. But if he's uptight about something—if he's having trouble with his lines for the next day or is worried over something—David will play the guitar or take walks to relax. Getting away from his problems for a while makes it that much easier for David to face them! So, if you became Mrs. David Bruce Cassidy, you might be awakened at 3 in the morning to the sounds of guitar music! You'd have to have a pretty steady personality to smile and say "That's my David!"—or go out and join him in a few songs!

David's eating habits can be surprising, too! Sometimes he can go for weeks eating ordinary food—toast and eggs for breakfast, steak for dinner and so on. Then one day he'll want a sandwich for breakfast and eggs for dinner! The girl who loves David will have to understand that meals can't really be planned way in advance and that, maybe, David'll want to make a midnight trip to the supermarket for something you don't have on hand! Bagels at 2 A.M.?

David's also fussy about the way his girl would dress or look for him. He can't stand hair spray—he wants to run his hands through your hair without that sticky feeling. And when he thinks about the wife he'll have someday, he pictures her getting into bed wearing a fluffy negligee and with a freshly scrubbed face and a beautiful smile—not in flannel pajamas with a head full of curlers and face full of creams! David's wife will have to spend extra minutes at night and in the morning to avoid the things David dislikes!

Everyone has their quirks—you probably do, too! Do you leave a wet towel on the bathroom floor after your shower (like David does?)—or do you always wind up in the morning with the blankets wrapped all around you (David would hate that—because he likes to do that himself!)? Well, chances are David would have to get used to you, too! He could do it—he loves you and would take whatever time was needed to adjust to you and your quirks!

But now, after you know all these things about David, could YOU still love HIM? Hmmm?
