Somebody the other day asked me what kind of things I dream about and I couldn't really think of anything. But then I thought about it for a long time and realized that I spend a great deal of time dreaming—both during the day and at night.

Daydreams are fun because you control them. I like to sit around on the set between scenes (that is, if I've already got my lines memorized) and daydream about things I'd like to do and places I'd like to go and stuff like that.

MY NUMBER ONE DAY-DREAM

I guess my number one day-dream is about having a whole lot of time all to myself to do anything I want to. Of course, I'd probably just sleep—but then I could do some real dreaming.

But I also daydream about things that are sort of real. Like I dream about doing a concert and there's thousands of kids there but somehow it's very intimate, too, and it's like I'm singing to each one individually—like I'm singing directly to you!

And then there's my dream of doing a really great movie—something where I'd play a totally different kind of character from Keith Partridge. Like maybe I'd be the bad guy, or something like that, where I'd really have to do some tough acting. I really love acting and it's great to be in a TV series but I'd also like to try some different roles.

There is this one dream that I have very often. In it, I'm like in my thirties or so, and I'm mar-
