

pleasing her wonderful husband—both on and off the screen. She realizes that it's just as important to be sexy off the screen for her husband as it is on. It's her sense of responsibility to her fans and especially to her husband that keeps her attractive all the time. She doesn't walk around the house nude but feels a sexy gown and a wild natural hair-do (that's the way Roger likes her hair best) can turn an evening of watching television into a very romantic event.

Ann-Margret recalled the days when she and Roger first started dating. Most people were saying the romance wouldn't last. They dated for almost two years and were engaged for another year until they married. No one ever would have thought ten years ago that Roger Smith of 77 Sunset Strip would be the dynamic producer-writer-manager of the Oscar nominated Ann-Margret. Beneath his gentle manners lies a strong and powerful man, a man who can take charge of all situations—good or bad. If that weren't true—he still might be sitting in an East Berlin jail!

Roger's in charge now. He planned Ann-Margret's career down to the last nomination. He tells her what to wear—and how to wear it. He picks out her jewelry and even her hair styles. He's pulled Ann through some rough spots—and they've achieved ultimate stardom for Ann-Margret. Roger's ambition—which is coming true—is to have Ann become a star, a star that shines like a Gable or a Lombard.

For the future—they will plan it together. They both want children very much. But if you ask Ann-Margret about her future acting plans she'll simply say, "You'll have to ask my husband about that." She doesn't have to worry about her career—with Roger Smith by her side, things just have to turn out great. ● no exception. As the current heartthrob of millions of teen-age girls, David has the image of being the boy next door. His off-stage life, according to the teen magazines, is about as "wicked" as the Partridge Family's escapades.

Few of David's fans, the same fans who scream and swoon when he steps on the concert stage, know that he doesn't always travel from city to city alone! Just recently, as a matter of fact, he reportedly made part of a tour with a girlfriend who, it is said, threw out four letter words like a pro!

Even more surprising are some of the secrets of David's hidden past, secrets that have been kept under wraps until now. They aren't based on gossip or rumor—but on memories of David himself, memories he at long last is talking about for the first time!

"You have to pay dues for everything, whatever you do," David says. The years of his delinquent past may well be behind
