JIMMY

around in the field and Jimmy once again called his pet. He wanted to go home. But Fuji just ignored him, and kept right on playing. Jimmy called again, but nothing happened. Suddenly, the black dog ran out of the field and down the street with Fuji in hot pursuit. Jimmy ran after the two dogs, frantically calling for them to stop.

Back at the Osmond house, the family was beginning to wonder where Jimmy could be. Mrs. Osmond asked Donny and Jay to walk over to the field and see if Jimmy had lost track of the time.

By now, Jimmy had followed the dogs more than ten blocks and was getting very tired. As he stopped to rest, he glanced around and realized that he had no idea where he was. Jimmy Osmond was lost!

A tear slid down his cheek and then another and before he could stop himself, Jimmy was crying. Even though he was very upset, Jimmy knew what he should do. He walked up onto the porch of the nearest house and rang the doorbell. Jimmy told the woman who answered who he was and what had happened. After calling his mother, Jimmy sat in the friendly house and waited for someone from his family to pick him up.

When Donny and Jay found no trace at all of Jimmy or Fuji at the field they began to worry. They decided to go back home and see if there had been any news. When they got to the front porch, Fuji had just arrived. He'd had no trouble finding his way home!

Well all's well that ends well. Alan picked Jimmy up and brought him home for a happy reunion with the whole family—including Fuji who was given a good scolding by the entire Osmond clan.

Later that night, all was calm once again at the Osmond residence. Jimmy was safely tucked away in his bed, dreaming happy dreams. Fuji was fast asleep on the porch and the rest of the family sat together in the den, grateful that nothing more serious had happened to their little Jimmy.
