

How do you make your dreams come true? I think first you start by saying will this dream benefit others as well as myself. If it will, then it is worth trying to make it come true. And, if it does truly benefit others, then you'll also find that it is a dream that will come true much easier.

Secondly, I think you've got to have a lot of faith. You've got to really believe that your dream can happen. Not just wish it, but believe in it. That's the way we felt when we all had a dream of becoming entertainers. We knew that it could happen and we believed that it would.

Another thing about having your dreams come true—don't be discouraged. If, at first, things don't seem to be going the right way, don't throw it all away and give it up. Just work on it a little bit harder and I'm sure that things will begin to happen. Nobody's dream would ever come true if they just gave it up the first time they ran into some obstacle.

BY DAVID CASSIDY

The world is built on dreams and hopes. When I tell someone about a dream I have and they say "You're just a dreamer" I always smile because I know that if you are a dreamer—like me—you can make your dreams come true!

Everything that's good around us was probably only a dream at one time. But someone believed in that dream strongly enough to make it real. When I was younger, I used to dream about acting on-stage. It was the hope that my dream would one-day come true that led me to take jobs behind the stage, just so I could be close to what I really wanted. Those early jobs weren't acting roles at all. They involved moving sets around and watching everyone get a chance to act except me. But I had great faith in my dream. I knew if I just kept at it, one day, I would get the chance to show what I could do. To show that I was worthy of my dream. And, as you know it did happen. I did get my chance and my dream did come true.

Today I have had many of my dreams come true and I'm very lucky, but I still dream. And I know that if I really want those dreams and believe in them then one day, they will come true, too!

So, what can you do to make your dreams come true? First of all, believe in them. Say to yourself, "This dream will be real one day. My hopes will be rewarded."

And watch for opportunities. If, for instance, you dream about visiting Hollywood it can happen! How? Well, do you have any relatives out here who might be interested in having you for the summer? Maybe you could provide them with a summer's worth of babysitting. Or, maybe you could even earn your own fare out here by babysitting or doing other chores in your hometown. No, I'm not being silly. I'm serious; it is possible. Set your goals and remember your dream. You want to come to Hollywood. So think of the ways you can get here. Naturally, it's going to take some time and effort but it took me time and effort before I ever got a chance to act on-stage.

And, believe me, when it happens, when the dream starts to come true, there's no greater feeling in this world!

BY CHRIS KNIGHT

I feel like I'm living in a dream now. The only thing I'm afraid of is that someone will pinch me and I'll wake up and find that it is really only a dream. I'll find that we haven't really appeared in concerts before thousands of great kids, and that millions of those kids really don't watch us each week on TV.

I know it's not a dream but when things are so wonderful and you can't see how they could possibly be any better, you sometimes think that you are dreaming; that everything isn't for real. That's the way I feel at times. In a way, I'm afraid that it is a dream. 27

CONTINUED ON PAGE 28