birthday. You tell him:

(a) "Okay. Ha, ha, ha, ha. Now where's my real present!"

(b) "You and your stupid practical jokes! How can I show this off to my girlfriends."

(c) "Why, David, it's just what I've always wanted!" (after all, you can take a joke!)

9 Many of David's bosom buddies have nicknames. After seeing you for a long time he gives you a pet name "Cricket." You can't bear this name. How do you handle this sticky situation?

(a) You take it until you can't bear it another second. Then you explode and tell him to call you by your right name or else!

(b) You grin and bear it because you don't want to make him angry.

(c) You ask him to please call you by your right name and do it tactfully so that you don't make an issue out of it.

10 David is performing in your city, so, of course, he sends you two free tickets for his concert. Something comes up and you can't make the show. What do you do?

(a) Give the tickets to some friends and explain it later to David.

(b) Let the tickets go to waste and hope David hasn't noticed that your seat was empty.

(c) Give the tickets away, but lie to David and say you were there because you're afraid he'll be angry if you didn't go.

How did you rate? A score of 30-25 means that you find David's love appeal irresistible and you would probably get along great on a date with him! A score of 24-20 means that you've got a lot of growing up to do before you date David or any other boy, for that matter. A score of 19 or less means you aren't really trying at all. If you got a perfect score—30—then it's a darn shame if you don't meet David, because he would probably love you!
