

DAVID CASSIDY HIDING OUT!

DO YOU KNOW WHERE HE IS?

...WE DO!

The last time David Cassidy was in England, he was almost run out of town on a rail. All you avid, screaming fans (and you know who you are) created such chaos in the streets of London, that David virtually had to run for his life. This time abroad, David isn't taking any chances. No mere disguise, he's come to realize, is going to keep a truly dedicated fan away. So David has gone one step further to insure his privacy . . . and his safety. David has rented a yacht, and he's had it anchored far from the teeming shores of the Thames River.

For a while, David was secure on deck of the 120-foot Ocean Sabre, but somehow you fans got on his trail. And now that you've been able to persuade the skippers of the regular Thames launches to make a slight diversion and pass by David, he may have to find another hideout.