

"Your head line is very, very direct, goes straight across your hand. That means that you don't play games with people. You don't carry on and get devious—you're very direct. Your head line has it all figured out as to what you're going to tell people—but there's one problem—emotionally you don't like to attack. That's part of the minister thing.

"As a young child you were very, very complex and it was much more difficult for you to control these emotions which right now at this point in your life, you're surprising even your-coming into a stronger phase of your life. This is probably the most important thing I can tell you—this phase of your life is almost over for you.

"Your destiny changes soon. There's only one caution for this upcoming change. It could be that you will have too many things thrown at you. You're going to have too many choices thrown at you. The choice of what to do next is going to be very difficult, but you know you can handle it. You can handle it.

"You are so aware. You direct, construct the path of your own life. Believe me, your life will be getting better from this point on".

self because you're reaching a control level you've never had before—and you'll get even more so as you grow older.

"You've always had it intellectually, but emotionally it's so difficult for you to kind of declare the way that you are.

"You'll be happier with your career when you're about 24 or 25. You won't be doing what's given to you to do but what you want to do. You have many facets—you are not just one thing. You are not just an actor or a singer. You may well be putting this whole phase behind you and going on into other things, maybe directing. Your hand says you can deal with many things besides acting.

"You're learning now how to coordinate all of your marvelous gifts and in about a year you'll never have to do it someone else's way again—it'll be all your ball game. Your childhood, your tragic childhood, is almost over. You're

David sat quietly for a few seconds, then said to Sydney, "I have been pretty skeptical of psychic arts, but I must say your reading my palm has restored some of my faith in those sort of things. I'm glad I experienced this. Thank you."

He went home that night a little more relaxed, a little more confident and with a lot of reassurance that whatever his future holds, he will have control of it and it will work out the way he wants it to.

After David had left, Sydney explained that most people, when they have their palm read, want to know when they'll marry, and who, and how many children and all that sort of thing. But he noted that he hadn't included that in David's reading because he felt it wasn't important to David. He explained that when he reads someone's palm he looks for the things that are important to that person. And in David's case he felt that David's major concerns now are about his career and life in general and not romance. And David has often stated that he probably won't marry until he's over 30, so perhaps marriage won't become important to him until then.

All in all it was an eventful meeting and one that David won't forget for a long, long time.
