Mary Tyler Moore and producer-hubby Grant Tinker were especially noticeable at a recent CBS bash. That wild lion on Mary's dress was a major attraction.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR is about to get a new toy—a custom-built, $625,000 mobile dressing-room suite. The luxury caravan, which will be about as large as the average-sized family's house, will follow Elizabeth wherever she has a film job. It seems the star hasn't been too happy lately with the accommodations provided on her recent movies. But it really isn't an extravagance. After all, RICHARD can use it, too! And, we're happy to report that Elizabeth is back filming NIGHT WATCH with LARRY HARVEY, who is okay after his recent surgery which closed down the film.

Juliette Prowse and singer John McCook finally made it to the altar. Their previous wedding date had to be postponed while Juliette gave birth to their 7-lb., 5-oz. bouncing baby son.

one of his concerts. Just as the teen idol was preparing for his second sold-out concert of the day at the Nassau Coliseum on Long Island, he realized he couldn't go out there in his semi-see-through white jump suit without something underneath. He'd left his hotel so fast, he'd forgotten to wear any! Unfortunately, even though the young singer was practically crowded out of the small room by stacks of gifts from adoring fans, none of the elaborately-wrapped packages contained underwear!

A quick poll was taken of those present and the results were: one road manager who didn't wear any; one road manager who was too large; one lady journalist in a body stocking; and one lady press agent whose undergarments were too brightly colored to be worn beneath David's white jumpsuit. Just as David's best friend, SAM HYMAN, took a reluctant step towards the bathroom to "volunteer" for the exchange (after all, what are best friends for?), the limousine driver, who had been dispatched to the hotel to retrieve David's own forgotten apparel, appeared to save the day. And the show went on as scheduled.
