

David Cassidy probably sums up the attitudes of all the kids on The Partridge Family show when he talks about his fans; "There are a lot of people out there who care. They see me as something. For me to destroy that image would hurt them. I feel a responsibility towards them." The adults on the show, Shirley Jones and Dave

Madden, have said again and again that they consider themselves lucky to be working with such an unspoiled, talented group of kids. Just like in a real family, everyone helps everyone else. Are they different than other kids? Sure —they work a lot harder!

Shirley Jones (r.) thinks the Partridge kids (that's David Cassidy cent.) are all super.
