

ANDY WILLIAMS: Even though school lets out in June each year, summer really never gets going until July Fourth! Swimming is a "must" on the Fourth so we almost always get together with our relatives for a day of sun and fun! Bring your suit, girl, 'cause I love to spend hours splashing in a pool and all that water somehow makes you super hungry, so when the barbecued chicken and baked beans are set out, you and I can rush to the front of the line! Fireworks are fun to watch, but I'd rather save some time for just the two of us. So, after dinner we can find a nice spot away from the crowds for a long walk, some quiet talk and the goodnight kiss that will top off our whole day!

DAVID WILLIAMS: A bicycle-built-for-two will be our wheels for a day made for you and me! There's this great park near where we live that's so big and spread out you could never see the whole thing in one day! We can ride around watching all the happy gatherings, then meet our own friends at a secret place. Everyone can bring one dish for our "pot luck picnic." What I'd like most is if we bring hero sandwiches piled high with meats, cheeses, tomatoes and all kinds of goodies. In the afternoon we can rent a boat and row around the lake. For sure, I'll bring my guitar and every song I sing will be just for you!

MIKE ONTKEAN: My favorite kind of picnic is like the ones I used to go on as a kid. Then we'd take our sailboat to a big lake a few hours from home and spend the day in the warm sun. Now, I sail in the Pacific Ocean and it really has its own thrill. We can sail all morning, then pull in the sails and drift while we lunch on a basketful of delicious treats—green peppers stuffed with shrimp, cold sliced meat loaf and soft French bread with a crunchy crust. When our skin gets tight and our kisses taste salty, we can hoist the sails and head for shore for an evening of quiet hours alone together.
