dining, they wisely forgo the fancy eateries with their crystal goblets, French menus and scrapping head waiters. The boys take their eating ethnic—Mexican food for Andy and Chinese food for David. And the more authentic the better. Then they wash the great meal down with buckets of orange juice, the fresh-squeezed California variety. There you have the Williams' version of dining par excellence.

However, their taste in cars makes up for their lack of sophistication in dining.
Make it a Mercedes, beige or brown for Andy. Make it a Mercedes 290 SE 4-door, dark blue with a dark blue convertible top, David specifies for his dream car. Far out!

But very "in" is how the Williams Twins feel about music. For favorite writers and singers, both agree Elton John and Carole King are top-notch. As to performing groups? Nobody, in their opinion, tops the Jackson 5. But as to favorite songs, they have a new favorite every other week—wisely keeping abreast with the fast changing pace of the musical world.

The pace of the Williams Twins has noticeably quickened since they cut their first disc, "I Won't Last A Day Without You." But due to their own way-out wisdom they'll neither burn out with over-publicity or burn up over the wrong publicity.
