

Editor's Inside Story

Hello!

By Liz Dagucon

It seems like ages since I've sat down behind my typewriter to pound out all the news to you! But now that I've started, there's no way to stop me! Get your ears into high gear, 'cause the next two pages promise to be fact-filled (and get your eyes into focus too—'cause the guys aren't bad to look at either!).

First, talking about "ears"—it seems that I have had more telephone interviews and chats this month than I've ever had before!

The other day I was talking to David Cassidy (he was calling from the Partridge set—they've resumed shooting y'know). David said that the hiatus was something he was really looking forward to and that he got a lot of the things he wanted to do done, but he was glad to be back at work!

David said, "When you're in front of the cameras all the time, you keep thinking to yourself that all you want to do is get away from studios, cameras, and scripts. Then you're separated from those work-day tools, and you find that you miss them. At least I did—and I'm really happy to be back!"

I told David that I understood how he felt because sometimes the last thing in the world I want to do is come eyeball-to-eyeball with another carbon paper, typewriter, or paper clip! But then a really exciting news item comes through and I find myself writing stories in my head—even though I'd told myself that I didn't want to. Guess it's in our blood—acting's in David's and my heart keeps rhythm with the clickety-clack of a typewriter! Ahhh well, we're both happy... even though we gripe sometimes! Is that the same way with you, TBS readers?

Another phone chat was with the likeable foursome you know as the singing Raspberries! They were in town for just a few days and we couldn't get out time schedules to match—so our only contact was through the old telephone. The boys (Wally, David, Jim, & Eric) are in town to begin recording their second album—and another group (who will remain nameless), when the nameless group got a tab touchy about the following and the crowd reaction that the Raspberries were receiving! So, the nameless group immediately insisted that the Raspberries be dropped from the tour! Egos & jealousies don't make pretty music—The Raspberries know that—hope the nameless group learns that lesson too... or else they might not last as a group too long!

Had a lovely chat with a lovely young actor—20-year-old Christopher Hayes. He's appeared on several movies (did you perhaps catch him in "The Computer Wore Tennis Shoes"?), and he's really starting to give the girls in Canada that familiar fluttering of the heart when girls fall in love!

LOVABLE CHRISTOPHER!

It doesn't take a genius to understand why girls would be attracted to Christopher (by the way, he prefers to be called Christopher—not Chris). Christopher has brown eyes that are so velvety that they put Bambi's eyes to shame—and his chocolate-brown locks frame an absolutely adorable smile! Besides that, the day he came to visit, he had just returned if it's anything like their 1st ("Fresh Raspberries")—it's bound to be a hit!

RASPBERRIES TOUR

They were all bubbly & happy as could be, but they did relate one story to me that was a bit of a bummer! It seems that the Raspberries were happily on tour with from a 3-week vacation in Hawaii and he had the most beautiful golden-brown tan—(he had everyone in the office "green" with envy)!

Christopher loves the Hawaiian Islands—which isn't hard to believe, especially when you discover that he was born in Honolulu! If you like what you've heard—
