

Danger! CASSIDY at work!

Spending two days with superstar David Cassidy may sound to you like a dream come true—but, as TV producer John Edwards and his team discovered, nerves of steel and suits of armour are basic equipment. If you saw their Thames TV programme "This Week" which was screened on March 22 you'll understand. And if you didn't, Look-In has prepared a special report on David Cassidy, based on John Edwards' programme, to put you in the picture.

A CASSIDY FAN CONFESSES

"This Week" reporter Peter Taylor managed to soothe a frenetic female fan long enough to talk to her about David:

Taylor: What would it be like, Julie, if you didn't have an idol?

Julie: Well, I'd feel lonely and I wouldn't have anyone to care for me, and I'd be on my own for ever and no one would like me.

Julie's friend: At school they'd say you weren't very up to date and that would make you feel lonely.

Taylor: But how do you feel when you see him on stage?

... you sort of feel—you know—is it him? You just can't believe it. You've got so much inside you, when you see him you just let it all out. You've got to get rid of it otherwise you'd burst!
