

TALKING THINGS OVER WITH.....

Have you got a personal problem, or a family problem? You're not the only one - your faves have them too. And their ideas for solutions are really far out - read for yourself!

DONNY OSMOND

FaVE: How do you want a girl to act when she first meets you?

DONNY: Hopefully she'll act like herself. Sure, I can understand that in some situations, like a concert, you can get caught up in all the excitement and lose your cool. But people who try to be something they're not to impress others really turn me off.

You are what you are, and if you don't think that's good enough then try to change it. But remember, change it from the inside. Putting on a flashy outfit and changing your make-up isn't going to change the real you!

The one thing that really turns me on is to see a big beautiful smile, one that you know is coming from the heart. But if you don't feel it, for heavens sake don't try to fake it! Most people can spot a phony.

And don't ever think that by being loud and aggressive, people will be attracted to you. Sure they'll notice you, but that's about it. My brothers and I have talked a lot about it and we all agree that aggressiveness is one thing that we don't like!

A smile and a soft "hello" will turn a person onto you a lot more than a scream and push anytime. And it's a great way to break the ice. Then we can talk. Don't think that you have to talk about any specific thing, say what comes into your head. Honesty is always the best policy.

So, above all, be yourself. Don't ever try being something you're not, 'cause you can bet people, sooner or later, will see right through it. And that's not going to impress anyone. So smile and I'll be yours forever!

DAVID CASSIDY

FaVE: If a girl you liked asked you for advice about another guy, how would you react?

DAVID: That would be a sticky situation, wouldn't it? First of all, I would blame myself a little for not letting the girl know I liked her. If she'd known that, she wouldn't have asked for advice about another guy.

I guess I would have to be honest with her and really give her what I thought was good advice! If I gave her the wrong advice, something that would scare the guy off, then she certainly wouldn't like me for that!

But if I gave her good advice, then I'd have to just sit back and watch. I guess I'd ask her to let me know how it worked, and that way I could tell if I'd ever have a chance with her myself, by how serious it was getting between the two of them! If it worked out between them, then maybe she wasn't the right girl for me, after all! But if they still had problems, maybe she'd come to me again for advice. And then maybe, after awhile, she'd come to realize that I cared about her and, if she agreed with my advice or what I had to say, she'd realize that we had a lot in common! Then I could take it from there and ask her for a date.

Of course, I wouldn't do the same thing if the girl were really going steady with the other guy or engaged to him. That's where I draw the line, because I don't believe in getting involved in that heavy a situation. I wouldn't want another guy giving advice to my steady or fiance, so I couldn't do