

SEE THIS PIZZA — look quick because it's gonna be gone soon!

I didn't even have time to practice my guitar playing, much less write songs! And so I became less and less happy, and I began to think deeply about where I was going with my life.

I had to ask myself what I really wanted. And the answer, no matter how I looked at it, was always the same. I wanted to make music for you.

But if I'm going to make music for you, it has to be the best music I can possibly make. And that means I'll have to devote myself to it full-time to develop whatever talent I may have so that I can give you the kind of music I think you deserve.

And so I decided to quit the P.F. It was the hardest decision ever—and there are still times when I wonder if I was wrong. It hurt a lot of people that I never wanted to hurt at all, and that's obviously wrong.

But I have to do what I feel is right. And maybe, if I work hard enough and long enough, I'll be good enough to write a song that will really answer your questions, better than I have here. I guess all I can say is have faith, Karin, and know that

I love you,
David
