

DAVID'S SCENE

my book.

Q. Could you please tell me exactly what you did on Christmas Day? — Debbie Biddulph, Rhodesia.

David's personal answer : I must say it was a toss up between spending the holidays at home or going to Hawaii. I finally decided to go to Hawaii as I won't have a chance to go again for some time what with all the touring I'll be doing. On Christmas Day, I called my family to wish them a happy day, went horseback riding and swimming and generally had an exhilarating but beautifully restful day.

Q. What is your idea of a perfect meal? — D. Graham, London.

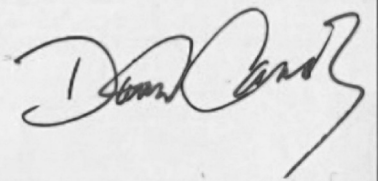

David's personal answer : Anything edible! Actually, while I do have my off days when I eat sweets and greasy foods, basically I'm what's known as a health food fanatic. I usually go to health food stores to do my shopping and get juicy steaks, fresh fruits and fresh vegetables. When I go out to eat, I basically like good food. I must tell you about a great restaurant I went to in Spain once. I got hysterical when I saw one of the items on the menu—stewed partridge! Needless to say I had to order it! It was delicious!

Q. I've heard that you're going to change your image because you don't like your fans of fourteen and under. I'm mad about this but correct me if I'm wrong.—D.C. fan, Crawley, Sussex.

David's personal answer : I sure wish I knew where and how all these rumours get started. I love all my fans. After all, where would I be without them? It doesn't matter to me how old they are. I really appreciate all of them.

I'd better sign off now because I really must check to make sure I haven't forgotten to pack anything.

ALL MY LOVE,

ASK DAVID ANYTHING

I'm really getting all excited now. I'm just about all packed and ready to go off to New Zealand to start my world tour! Just think, the next batch of questions will be answered from down under. Well, must get this lot off quickly before I leave...

Q. Do you believe in getting engaged before getting married? — Christine, Rotherham, Yorks.

David's personal answer : That's rather a difficult question really. But basically I'd say it would depend on the girl. By that I mean many girls have always dreamt of being engaged for a while before getting married. Then again, if she'd like to get married as soon as I popped the question, that would be all right, too.

Q. Would you marry a girl of a different religion to your own? — Irene Garfield, Sutton, Surrey.

David's personal answer : What's going on here? I get the feeling you're all trying to marry me off! Actually, since I've never been particularly religious, I don't see that it would matter much. There are qualities I look for that are more important to me than someone's religion.

Q. Which is your fave group? — Ann White, Cheshire.

David's personal answer : That's an easy one! While many groups come and go, The Beatles are still tops in at it!

MY WEDDING BOOK
I have quite an unusual hobby. I collect pictures of pop stars when they get married and stick them in a scrapbook. Unfortunately, I haven't got even one wedding day picture of super Jermaine Jackson marrying Hazel Gordy. Can you help? Maggy Bentley, Sussex

Anything to oblige, Maggy! Here's a pic of the happy couple just for you—The Editor.
