

SHAUN AND DAVID:

HAPPY HALF -BROTHERS?

David Cassidy wants to retire from show business and his younger half-brother Shaun wants to be a star! Will they both get their wishes?

David Cassidy recently announced that after four years of fame and fortune he plans to retire to a mountaintop home he is building in Hawaii. There, he plans to relax, let all the pressures dissolve and as he puts it, "regain my identity."

David has sold more than 20 million records in his time, and has earned a small fortune. "For months," David says, "I worked 7 days a week on tour, 18 hours a day, lived in hiding and never had a chance to develop any real relationships with people. My life was never my own!"

Now David says he's getting out. He wants to take a period to just rest, and maybe comeback after a time as a trained and developed actor!

But, while David's talking about retirement, his brother Shaun is upset because his parents, Jack Cassidy and Shirley Jones, won't let him play with his rock-group, Longfellow. In fact, Shirley and Jack have sent Shaun off to a private boarding school back East in hopes that it will tame him down some!

What does Shaun think about that? According to friends who spend time with him when he's in Hollywood during vacations, he absolutely hates it! He'll have to wait until he's out of school to work at being a star!
