

famous studio, Caribou Ranch in Colorado.

David has had a special flap installed in the front door so that Bullseye can come and go as he pleases. Then he sits by his swimming pool, which is surrounded with tall bushes so that you can hop into the water naked. David picks his lunch from a tree: sweet, home-grown oranges.

David only misses one thing at home: his 14 horses, which are stabled in San Diego. I've become a real horse lover," says David. "Unfortunately, I only see my animals three times a month at most".

At the moment, David is working harder than ever before in his life. He is currently working on his latest LP, which will be released in America within twelve months. The fact that his fame has faded since the end of the Partridge Family worries him immensely. I do have a lot of loyal fans in Europe and especially in Germany," says David.

But in my home country, I can't get a foot on the ground, so I'm now fighting with all my might. I won't be satisfied until I have a huge hit in America. But despite everything: I also long for my friends in Germany - as soon as I have some money, I'll come to Germany
