Culture Editor: Larry Aydlette 561-820-4436 or pbaccent@pbpost.com

Bonus section

visit the Tennessee town.

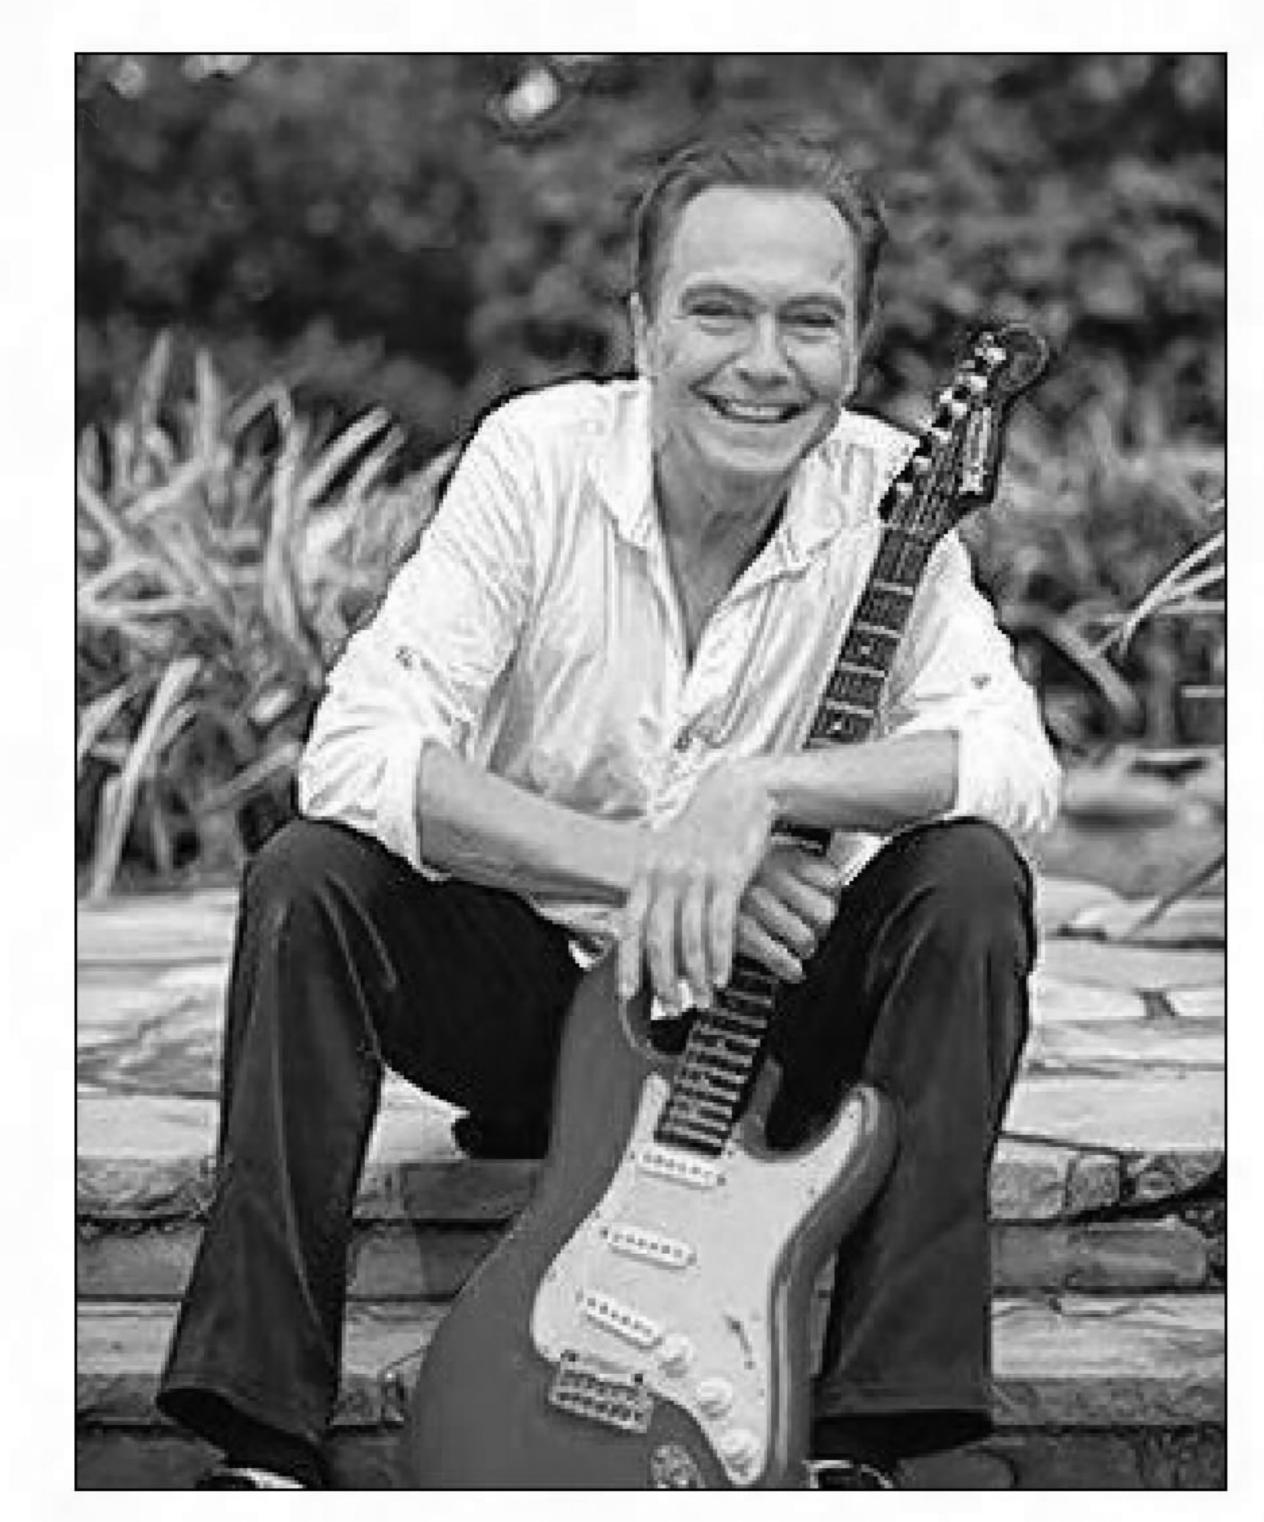

Free to subscribers on the ePaper and at mypalmbeachpost.com

SNEAK PEEK

David Cassidy's Fort Lauderdale home boasts a spacious master bedroom with a separate sitting area. CONTRIBUTED PHOTOS

David Cassidy paid $1.1 million for his waterfront home in 2001 and spent another million to renovate it.

David Cassidy is auctioning his home and all its furnishings on Sept. 9.

Check out David Cassidy's swanky Fort Lauderdale digs – before the house goes on the auction block.

By Staci Sturrock

Palm Beach Post Staff Writer

Come on, get happy, David Cassidy fans!

Fisher Auction is selling off the one-time heartthrob's Fort Lauderdale home, and even if you don't have a spare $3 million to join the bidding, you can still get a peek at how a former star of "The Partridge Family" lives. Cassidy paid $1.1 million for the waterfront address in 2001, and spent another $1 million on renovations. He declared bankruptcy in Feb-

The mansion and all of its furnishings will hit the auction block Sept. 9. "My soon-to-be ex-wife and I need to resolve our financial problems," the 65-year-old Cassidy told The Associated Press last month.

The home on Mayan Lake has five bedrooms, 61/2 bathrooms, chef's kitchen, gym and resort pool.

And, yes, it's outfitted with hurricane windows and doors.

ssturrock@pbpost.com Twitter: @StaciSturrock

Turn to page D5 for more photos of Cassidy's soon-to-be-sold home.

Views of David Cassidy's Fort Lauderdale home, including the pool area, front entry and an an BY FISHER AUCTION

